

I strongly oppose elimination of Morse Code test requirement for Amateur Radio high frequency privileges. The ability to communicate using the most basic equipment, and in the most adverse conditions, is one of the most important and valuable aspects of the Amateur Radio Service, and it should remain so. I urge the FCC to reject any proposal to eliminate Morse Code testing from Amateur Radio licensing requirements.